■ Date Claimer:
M&GSQ I UQAM Seminar
7 December 2012, 1.30–5.30 pm
Auditorium Two, State Library of Queensland

M&GSQ was successful in its application to the Australia Council's Visual Arts Board International Strategy, International Visitors Program to fund Professor Susanne Küchler to visit Australia, based on her work on Pacific and Oceania art and anthropology and her role on the international team researching the new history of Art in Oceania.

M&GSQ will co-host Susanne's visit to Australia with the Visual Arts Board of the Australia Council. In Brisbane, Susanne will be the keynote international speaker for the annual seminar presented by Museum and Gallery Services Queensland with the University of Queensland Art Museum and UQ Museum Studies Program. Professor Küchler will speak about her role as one of three London-based researchers on the new history of Art in Oceania project and the resurgence of interest in Pacific art over the past two decades.

The seminar is timed to lead into the Queensland Art Gallery | Gallery of Modern Art's premier event, the Asia Pacific Triennial of Contemporary Art (APT). APT7, opening 8 December, will mark the 20th anniversary of the APT.

Other speakers will also contribute to the afternoon, including Dr Graeme Were, Convenor, University of Queensland Museum Studies Program. Graeme specialises in material culture and museum studies and his current interests include the analysis of ethnographic objects; digital heritage and source community engagement; and object-based learning within the university museum. He has a regional specialisation in the Pacific and has published widely in anthropology on: textiles, religious revivalism [the Baha'i movement], and pattern and cognition.

His work includes the recent book, Lines that Connect: Rethinking Pattern and Mind in the Pacific (University of Hawaii Press, 2010) and

Pacific Pattern (Thames & Hudson, 2005 with S. Kuechler). He has been guest editor on special issues of Textile: the Journal of Cloth and Culture (with J. Jefferies) and the Journal of Visual Communication. He is an editor of the Journal of Material Culture and a founding editor of Material World Blog.

Registration will open soon. For more information, contact Ann Baillie e: ann.baillie@magsq.com.au

This project has been assisted by the Australian Government through the Australia Council for the Arts, its arts funding and advisory body.

■ Museum Advocacy Campaign: Meetings with State Ministers and local members

As reported in the last issue of source, M&GSQ kicked off an advocacy campaign for museums and galleries as part of the International Museum Day celebrations in May.

The campaign was inspired by an approach to M&GSQ by passionate museum advocates, Edith Cuffe and Suesann Vos from the Abbey Museum of Art and Archaeology, who wanted to see the value of museums and galleries to the community recognised and supported. The templates which M&GSQ provided to museums and galleries to write letters of invitation to their newly-elected local and state representatives paid dividends for the Abbey Museum, who received visits from the Mayor of Moreton Bay Regional Council, Allan Sutherland and Councillors Koliana Winchester, Gary Parsons and Peter Flannery, and from State Member, Lisa France and Federal Member, Wyatt Roy.

The Minister for Environment and Heritage Protection, Hon. Andrew Powell meets the M&GSQ Board and Staff. L-R: Ann Baillie, M&GSQ Manager Training and Professional Development; Deannah Vieth, M&GSQ Training and Professional Development Program Officer; Edith Cuffe, M&GSQ Board Member; Hon. Andrew Powell; Katrina North, M&GSQ Board Member and Deputy Chairperson; John Waldron, M&GSQ Board Member and Chairperson; Debra Beattie, M&GSQ General Manager; Rebekah Butler, M&GSQ Executive Director.

As part of the campaign, M&GSQ also wrote to four Queensland Government Ministers to invite them to meet with the M&GSQ Board and Staff – and we are delighted to report that the invitation was accepted by three of those Ministers.

Minister for Environment and Heritage Protection, Hon. Andrew Powell, took time out of his busy schedule to come to M&GSQ's Board meeting on 13 August. The Directors and Staff had a productive and informative meeting with Minister Powell regarding the government's plans for the State's built and moveable cultural heritage.

Representatives from the M&GSQ Board and Staff also met with Hon. Ros Bates, Minister for Science, Information Technology, Innovation and the Arts on 6 September. The Minister was given an overview of the profile and achievements of the museum and gallery sector and of M&GSQ's programs and services. A comprehensive range of issues was discussed including support for the sector (operational, infrastructure and project funding), professional staffing of the sector and the role of volunteers; the profile and placement of the collections sector and cultural heritage within government; the value of the sector to cultural tourism; and the relationship between galleries and museums and the national curriculum. The Minister discussed the government's Arts for all Queenslanders policy direction and encouraged M&GSQ to make further submissions on these topics.

A meeting has been scheduled in October with Hon. Jann Stuckey, Minister for Tourism, Major Events, Small Business and the Commonwealth Games.

■ Museum Advocacy Campaign: MUSEUMS MATTER

A new sector working group has been established to continue the museum advocacy campaign. Attended by a range of interested museum and gallery staff and volunteers, the group addressed some of the concerns facing the sector:

- The small numbers of paid staff in public museums in Queensland outside the state institutions.
- Few Queensland Museums, outside of the state institutions that are Statutory Authorities, receive operational funding from government.
- Museums face huge challenges finding funding for professional staff, infrastructure and major redevelopments such as new exhibitions.

- Museums suffer from a degree of invisibility in government policy at all levels, often not adequately positioned within or supported by either Arts or Heritage portfolios.

As a result of the first meeting, the new campaign – MUSEUMS MATTER – is underway. A logo has been developed (at right).

A Facebook page also has been established (image below) where you can go and show your support by 'liking' the site. You can post comments and add any stories that demonstrate how valuable museums are in contributing to education, tourism, local economies, community engagement, personal well-being, social inclusion and diversity and more – tell us all your good stories!

We also want to know what your advocacy issues are – and we'd like to hear if you've had any meetings or discussions with your State or Local Government members. To add your voice to Museums Matter, or to read what others have to say, go to <http://www.facebook.com/Museums-Matter>

If you know other people who love museums, we need their 'likes' – so give them the link above.

One of the next steps in the campaign is to develop a Toolkit for museums and galleries to use in their advocacy through a variety of methods – letter writing, personal approaches, the media and online.

■ M&GSQ wants your feedback on the Museum and Gallery Lighting and Air Conditioning Technical Industry Report

Museum and Gallery Services Queensland (M&GSQ) and Regional and Public Galleries New South Wales (RPG NSW) are preparing for an update of the Museum and Gallery Lighting and Air Conditioning Technical Industry Report to be published in late 2012/early 2013.

The second edition will reflect the latest changes in technology, so we want to know what you thought of the first version and what you would like to see included in the updated report.

We would like you to complete a brief survey (it should take about five minutes – ten questions, mostly multiple choice). You can access the survey at the following link: www.surveymonkey.com/s/LightingandAirconditioningReport

The Technical Industry Report was commissioned in 2011 by Museum & Gallery Services Queensland in partnership with Regional and Public Galleries New South Wales in response to questions and concerns from the gallery and museum sector about changing technologies and future options for lighting and air conditioning. The report was produced by the firms Steensen Varming and International Conservation Services. It was published in December 2011 and is available on M&GSQ's website at www.magsq.com.au/01\_cms/details.asp?ID=883

If you have read the report, we'd like to know what you thought and whether or not you have used the information to inform your decisions about lighting and air conditioning. We also want to know if you didn't use the information.

If you're aware of anyone else who might have read the report, please feel free to pass on the link to the survey.

■ 2012 Standards Review Program Field Visits

The M&GSQ Standards Review Program Field Visits were held during August with the 2012 Reviewers: Elizabeth Bates, Ross Bower, Ken Brooks, Steve Chaddock, Christine Ianna, Ian Jempson, Lisa Jones, Leanne Kelly, Jan King, Geraldine Mate, David Mewes and Ross Searle.

The Field Visits are an opportunity for the Reviewers to meet participants, tour the museum or gallery, view achievements by the organisation to date and to offer practical advice. Participants had all worked very hard on submitting their Self-Review Survey and this formed the basis of discussion for the Visit and highlighted the areas where the Reviewers could offer practical advice.

The following photographs represent the museums and galleries involved in the 2012 Standards Review Program Field Visits:

■ 2012 Standards Workshops

In Bundaberg on 7 September, a workshop targeting identified needs from the Self Review Surveys was attended by representatives of the following participating organisations: Portside Centre, Maryborough; The Old Pharmacy, Childers; North Burnett Regional Council; Hinkler Hall of Aviation, Bundaberg; and Bundaberg and District Historical Museum.

The special guest presenter for this workshop was Leif Ekstrom, A/Visual Media Coordinator, State Library of Queensland, who provided an insight into the State Library of Queensland's approach to the Distributed Collection and an excellent introduction to digitising your collection, including practical demonstrations on using a scanner and/or a digital camera on a tripod. The workshop also provided additional information on object files, significance, collection rationalisation and some resources for visitor research.

Participants commented very positively:

'Clarified the whole issue of digitisation, de-mystified it and showed that it's not that difficult. Very practical presentation, ideal for small museums.'

'The workshop was easy to follow, interesting with achievable actions for small museums.'

In Eidsvold on 8 September, a workshop targeting identified needs from the Self Review Surveys from the North Burnett participants was attended by representatives from: Eidsvold Historical Complex; Mt Perry Museum; Monto Historical and Cultural Complex; and North Burnett Regional Council. The special guest presenter for this workshop was Christine Ianna, a passionate preventive conservation practitioner who provided practical and achievable steps for a small museum to focus on the following topics:

- Principles of preventive conservation;
- Agents of deterioration;
- Spectrum of Solutions – Storage and display materials;
- Tips, practical advice and demonstration of how to care for the special objects participants had brought to the workshop.

At the Standards Workshop in Eidsvold, Christine Ianna demonstrates how to inspect objects prior to careful cleaning using vacuum cleaner, small attachments and delicate brushing.

Christine Ianna makes a simple object support while Leif Ekstrom demonstrates a simple set up for digitising using a camera on a tripod with Anne Hansen observing.

Christine bagged up the evidence of insects found when the object was vacuumed. This can be sent for identification to the Queensland Museum.

Christine demonstrated how good blue would be as a background to display this textile.

At Eidsvold in the RM Williams Australian Bush Learning Centre, for the Preventive Conservation Workshop with Christine Ianna. L-R: Jan Mossman, Ann Green, Beppie Stanley, Connie Dyke.

The afternoon session consisted of practical onsite preventive conservation advice at the Eidsvold Historical Complex, including onsite demonstrations of cleaning objects using special vacuum attachments, use of padding to better display uniforms and to relax the fabric, use of tissue, home-made boxes and encapsulation to store valuable items.

Participants commented that the strengths of the workshop included:

'Basic, cheap, do-able and effective techniques in conserving items.'

'Being able to see first-hand and to hear from an expert.'

'Small steps are achievable and small museums are able to do their bit.'

Presentations from these workshops will become available on M&GSQ's website and blog. This will be announced in our e-bulletin. If you have difficulty accessing these presentations and would like a copy of the notes and handouts, please contact Deannah Vieth on 07 3215 0844.

■ M&GSQ Standards Program Grants 2012

M&GSQ would like to thank Museums Australia Queensland whose donation of $50,000 made the Standards Program Grant possible from 2010–2012. These grants provided eligible museums and galleries with the funding to act on Standards Program outcomes and to implement projects that tie in with the forward plan produced at the end of their Review process.

The Grant Program recognised the dedication that participating museums and galleries have given to the review and assessment of their practices against National Standards as part of the M&GSQ Standards Program.

Applications were assessed against the advertised criteria:

1. How well the project satisfies best gallery/museum practice (refer to The National Standards for Australian Museums and Galleries v1.2, 2011);
2. How well the project fits with the organisation's forward plan;
3. Benefits of the project to the organisation;
4. The capacity of the organisation to manage the project;
5. The extent that the grant enables the project to happen, taking into account the financial situation of the organisation and the commitment they are making to the project; the availability of other sources of funds for this kind of project and any efforts made to secure these funds.

In 2012, the last year of the fund, more applications were received than could be funded, therefore some organisations were only able to be granted a contribution towards their funding request. The assessment panel noted that all the applications received were deserving of funding and awarded the following grants:

- James Cook Museum was funded for a Comprehensive Environmental Monitoring Program through the purchase of equipment and software.
- Friends Of The Atherton Chinese Temple was funded for a Temporary and Travelling Display on Overland Illegal Migration Of Chinese in the 19th Century.

- Mareeba Heritage Centre received a contribution towards a Volunteer Succession Planning Project in Three Phases (Plan; Workshop; Volunteer Museum Induction Program Kit).
- Cairns and District Chinese Association Inc. (CADCAI) received a contribution towards their Concept Development Brief Project: Engaging consultants to work with The CADCAI Heritage Group on planning for the proposed Chinese Culture and Heritage Centre.

■ Abbey Medieval Festival enters Hall of Fame

The Abbey Medieval Festival has won the Moreton Bay and Islands Tourism Award in the Festival/Events Category, for the third year in a row. With this prestigious award, the Festival has now been inducted into the Hall of Fame. The Abbey acknowledged the enormous contribution of hundreds of volunteers, re-enactors, performers and stallholders who work tirelessly to make this such a successful event each year. #### ■ Prize winner for FUTURE VISION Conference at MONA, Tasmania

In early August, the Public Galleries Association of Victoria (PGAV) offered regional galleries in Queensland the opportunity to win one free entry to its conference, FUTURE VISION: The Public Gallery in the 21st Century. The Conference was held at the Museum of Old and New Art (MONA) in Hobart, Tasmania from 30–31 August. The competition was open to staff and volunteers at regional galleries across Queensland in recognition of the additional costs involved in taking part. The lucky winner was Philippa Minney, Assistant Curator at the Gold Coast City Gallery.

The prize was made possible by the staff from Queensland Art Gallery | Gallery of Modern Art who were participating in FUTURE VISION, who generously donated their presenter fees.

Philippa thoroughly enjoyed her attendance at FUTURE VISION: "I found the talks incredibly stimulating – the issues that concern Victorian galleries and arts organisations are the same that we in Queensland face. It was also a great opportunity to meet other arts workers and learn more about the Victorian arts sector model and strategies they are putting in place for the future".

M&GSQ thanks Anne Robertson from PGAV and Maud Page and Kate Ryan at QAG | GoMA for making this opportunity possible.

■ New institution to merge AbaF and Artsupport Australia

On 1 August, Arts Minister Simon Crean announced the creation of a new institution to promote philanthropy, sponsorship and business support for the arts. The new body will merge the Australia Business Arts Foundation (AbaF) and Artsupport Australia program.

This move is the result of Harold Mitchell's review of private sector support, and the review of the Australia Council, which both recommended that a single body be established to drive private giving. The new institution will build on the successes of AbaF and Artsupport and 'join the dots' between facilitating private giving and philanthropy, encouraging sponsorship and corporate giving, building partnerships between artists, business and private donors, and recognising the contribution of philanthropists and the business sector in supporting the arts.

The Australian Government has allocated $3.2 million over two years in the 2012-13 Budget to support the continuation of AbaF and its amalgamation with the Australia Council's Artsupport program to create the new entity from 1 July 2013.

■ New Leadership Team for the Australia Council

Mr Crean also announced the appointment of prominent artist Ms Robyn Archer AO as Deputy Chair.

He is a former Chair of the National Gallery of Australia and chaired the 2002 independent Inquiry into the Contemporary Visual Arts and Craft Sector.

Robyn Archer is a highly respected performer, arts practitioner and administrator with wide-ranging experience as an artistic director of national and international arts festivals, including the Melbourne International Arts Festival. She is currently the Creative Director of the Centenary of Canberra in 2013 and Chair of the Artistic Advisory Board at Adelaide College of the Arts.

Both appointments are for a three-year term.

■ Transfer of Visions of Australia and the Contemporary Touring Initiative to the Australia Council

On 22 August, Arts Minister Simon Crean announced that the administration of regional touring programs will be transferred to the Australia Council, including Visions of Australia and the Contemporary Touring Initiative.

The transfer is part of a broader transfer of functions of the Australia Council that is designed to provide opportunities to consolidate Australian Government arts funding, improve service to the sector, achieve greater administrative efficiency and broaden the Australia Council's engagement across the sector to help achieve the goals of the National Cultural Policy.

From October 2012, the following Australian Government funding programs will be administered by the Australia Council:

- Contemporary Music Touring Program
- Playing Australia — the national performing arts touring program
- Visions of Australia and Contemporary Touring Initiative
- Festivals Australia

The Department of Regional Australia, Local Government, Arts and Sport will continue to administer the Regional Arts Fund, a partnership with the peak regional arts organisations in each state and arts ministries in the territories, which assists artists and arts organisations across regional and remote areas.

You can obtain fact sheets on the transfer at <http://www.arts.gov.au/regional> or phone 1800 819 461.

Art Gallery of New South Wales

My two weeks at the Art Gallery of New South Wales were divided into two main areas: the first week was geared towards meeting Gallery staff, exploring the Gallery spaces and facilities, learning about the public and educational programs on offer and being involved in these where possible. The second week involved participating in the Gallery Educators' Course held at AGNSW.

The Mentorship provided me with an insight into how AGNSW set up their public programs, the strategies they employed in linking the public to the art, and first-hand engagement with some of their public programs. Specifically I was very impressed with the focus they have on engaging the public with their collection works, and the idea of finding linkages between works of art that cross vast time-spans to create a connected story.

The opportunity to work in a major art institution outside Queensland and to build networks within the industry has been invaluable. My mentor, Victoria Collings, was very generous with her time despite her busy schedule and ensured that I participated in a range of programs and met with as many staff as possible.

The opportunity to speak with educators, volunteers and curators provided me with the bigger picture of the Gallery and the place where public programs and education sit within the Gallery. I was invigorated by the enthusiasm of staff and volunteers in their focus on providing quality learning experiences for the public.

The Mentorship has encouraged me to look at implementing new programs at Bundaberg Regional Art Gallery for children and families which will allow them to engage with artists and explore art exhibitions and techniques. A strengthened and more focused program will provide closer links to exhibitions and collection works, with the overall aim of encouraging and increasing participation in the arts by community members.

In a broader sense, the Mentorship has afforded me the opportunity to upgrade and enhance my knowledge of public programs, allowing me to grow as a professional.

Having arrived at Heathrow airport and cleared customs in record time, I hopped on the last train headed to Aberystwyth, Wales – a “full speed ahead” pace of activities that I kept up during the entire two-week placement. My first day was spent in the Aberystwyth Arts Centre studios, attending the Artist in Residence Open Studios. This event marked the end of a three-month residency for three international artists. The day was a good opportunity to meet the artists, art centre staff, teachers and various locals. The Arts Centre is extraordinary because of the range of activities, the number of services they provide, the diversity of audiences and the strength of their staff.

My program for the next week had been scheduled by Carol Bainbridge, the staff member in charge of International Residencies. Before I departed Townsville she sent me a schedule of two-hour meetings arranged with each key staff member.

Top: Aberystwyth Arts Centre, Wales.
Centre: School of Art.
Bottom: The gallery at the Arts Centre.

I have never had so many cups of tea, with meetings starting at 10:00 am and finishing at 6:00 pm. Each key staff person I met spoke with enthusiasm about their jobs and their fellow staff members. Each explained their role within the major arts organisation of 100 staff, and I shared about Umbrella Studio (Townsville).

All of the key staff were knowledgeable and highly skilled, some in the job for 30 years, and offered great suggestions for Umbrella's operations. So much of the discussion was spent brainstorming how I could implement some of the activities or change what we were doing to improve procedures. Time spent with each person, from the manager of the retail shop or bookstore to technicians and marketing, was relevant to Umbrella's operations.

Each evening I would write about my meetings – some of this information was included on my blog. I found the blogging useful because it forced me to reflect and encapsulate a few paragraphs from these massive days with so much information being discussed.

The following week I visited the art school and met with staff. I attended their student exhibition which included a very impressive display of artwork from their post-graduates. My meeting with the Head of School was aimed at supporting future Umbrella artists to use the facilities and link in with the School of Art. I also took an afternoon tour of the State Library of Wales, which has an impressive collection of over 60,000 artworks. Artists can use these resources including staff researchers, maps and charts in the archives.

My trip will yield good opportunities for North Queensland-based artists for the coming years. I gained a better understanding of the residency program and my aim was to build on the relationship developing between Umbrella and Aberystwyth so that North Queensland artists would be encouraged to continue to apply for the Program. This was achieved and since my return two N.Q. Artists/Umbrella Studio members have already applied for and been accepted for the International Artist in Residency program in 2013 and 2014. In 2013 they will host the well-known International Ceramic Festival. Umbrella has been asked to host an international festival participant in 2013.

During my Fellowship, I also gained a new level of arts/business understanding due to their different philosophies. The Aberystwyth Arts Centre is a multi-million dollar generating business that presents and offers community and professional arts. Alan Roper, the Director, is a savvy visionary and businessman who for the past thirty years has understood the danger of relying solely on government funding. The Arts Centre maintains a high standard of arts programming and continues to expand each of its programs. Centre management understands the need to generate revenue in order to subsidise other programs. The Aberystwyth arts/business model is an increasingly important one to Umbrella, especially in this current and rapidly changing Queensland political climate.

The key outcomes of my Fellowship for Umbrella Studio will be artist and exhibition exchanges to Aberystwyth from Umbrella and from Aberystwyth to Umbrella. However, my Fellowship has also made me aware of the potential of generating revenue through art sales, undertaking joint marketing initiatives with various arts organisations based in Townsville, and utilising various arts-related initiatives to better support those arts programs which do not generate revenue.

I feel fortunate to have had such a great opportunity to travel, work, network and learn overseas. I selected Aberystwyth because my aim was to strengthen the relationship between the two organisations and to gain a better understanding of how to run an artist residency program. I also wanted to investigate how the Arts Centre worked within the community. And although there are plenty of similarities between the two organisations, Umbrella Studio in Townsville and the Arts Centre in Aberystwyth are very different – but it has been the observation of these differences that was one of the great strengths of my time there.
